
Appealing or Re-Appealing a Question

Once an evaluator finishes filling out an evaluation form, a question within the evaluation can be appealed. But, the user who initially published the evaluation cannot immediately appeal a question. When a question is appealed, all questions linked to it are not automatically appealed. Each question must be manually added.

Let's say John is an evaluator who has published an evaluation of the agent, Mike. Now, agent Mike disagrees with the score provided by John and wants to request to re-score that question. In this case, Mike can contact agent representative offline and ask them to appeal on his behalf. The agent representative raises the request to re-score. An Appeals judge, authorized to evaluate and judge the re-score request, reviews the suggested answers on Mike's evaluation. The appeals judge either accepts or rejects the suggested answers. Depending on the judge's decision, the score gets updated accordingly.

If a blackout period is set up in the Management Console, users cannot appeal anything until that period has ended.

To appeal a question, agents must contact their agent representative offline, who then appeals on their behalf.

If a re-score request has a Pending status and is not yet ruled, the person who first appealed or any user with the Access all Evaluations permission can delete it. Deleting a re-score request doesn't change the system's number of allowed re-score requests.

Appealing/re-appealing an audited evaluation

Rescore requests are only carried out in Category View. If you select a rescore request while in Single Page view, you receive a prompt to change to Category View.

You can re-appeal for the same questions appealed. Each re-appeal question must suggest the same answer suggested in the original appeal.

To appeal/re-appeal an evaluation that has been audited:

1. Go to Evaluations > My Evaluations.
2. Select the evaluation that contains the questions you want to appeal/re-appeal.
3. In the evaluation, navigate to the category that contains the first question you want to appeal, and then click the Request Rescore link. The Request Rescore page shows the name for the current category, the original, audited, appealed, and re-appealed scores, where applicable. When the Request Rescore functionality is available, you see the Request Rescore link. This functionality is not available if any of the following are true:
 - You are the evaluator who originally published the Evaluation (except when the Evaluation were later audited or appealed).
 - The current category was skipped by the original evaluator.
 - If you select the View as single page option.
 - The maximum allowed number of rescore requests has already been reached for this category.

The screenshot shows the 'Evaluation Form' interface. At the top, there's a header with 'ID 1286' and a 'HELP' link. Below the header, there's a section for 'Template' and 'Grant access to' with a 'CHANGE' button. A sidebar on the left lists 'CATEGORIES' with 'Introduction' and 'Customer Validation' under it. The main area is titled 'INTRODUCTION' and shows a table with columns 'QUESTION', 'ANSWER', 'POINTS', and 'NOTES'. The table has one row for 'Connective Skills' with a score of '0.00 / 0.00' and '0 / 25'. Below the table, there's a 'Request Rescore...' link and a 'View as single page' checkbox. At the bottom, there's a 'Previous' button and a 'Next: Customer Validation' button. The overall score is '0 / 0.00 (-0.00 %)'.

4. In the Which question(s) would you like to have re-scored? section, select the question you want re-scored, suggesting a new score for each in the Suggested Score - Answer column. Suggesting a change for a question may cause a previously-skipped question to become active. These newly-activated questions are called follow-on questions (see Follow-on questions).
5. In the Reason for Rescore Request, enter the reason for requesting this appeal.

OK REVERT CANCEL HELP

Rescore request reasons for linked questions must be added manually. You can add a text up to 10000 characters. Click the Expand icon to add the complete text in the notes.

- Click OK. The Status in the evaluation page changes to Pending, and the Request Rescore link changes to View Rescore Request
- Proceed to subsequent categories, repeating the steps to appeal additional questions.

Deleting a rescore request for a linked question deletes all rescore requests for both linked and unlinked questions within the related category.

Appealing/re-appealing an evaluation that has not been audited

A re-appeal can only be launched on the same questions that were originally appealed. Each re-appeal question must suggest the same answer that was suggested as part of the original appeal.

To appeal/re-appeal an evaluation that has not been audited:

- Go to Evaluations > My Evaluations.
 - Select the evaluation that contains the questions you want to appeal/re-appeal.
 - In the evaluation, navigate to the category that contains the first question you want to appeal, and then click the Request Rescore link. The page updates with a second row of answers for each question in the current category.

4. Suggest new answers only for the questions you want to appeal. Answers that are different from the original are considered appealed. After you change an answer, you must enter a reason for the rescore request. If the question you appeal has follow-on questions, you may have to enter answers for these questions, depending on how your system is configured (see Follow-on questions). If your system is not configured to require answers for follow-on questions, then those questions have an answer of n/a. Any follow-on questions must be accepted or rejected as a whole by the appeals judge—they cannot be accepted or rejected individually.
5. The appeals judge selects the evaluation after seeing the rescore request. In the Request Rescore page, the appeals judge reviews the suggested answers (select the More link to see follow-on questions, if available). Selecting the More link launches a page explaining that if you accept the suggested answer for the appealed question, you must also accept the suggested answers for its corresponding follow-on questions.
6. (Appeals judge) In the Status column, the appeals judge rules appropriately on the question. The score change, if any, is reflected in the Score column.

Follow-on questions

Suggesting a new answer to an appealed question can activate a previously skipped question. Depending on the system configuration, you need to propose answers for them. If the system is not set up this way, you still see the follow-up questions in the "Which questions would you like to have re-scored grid," but they are disabled and display a Current Score - Answer value of n/a. Contact your system administrator for any questions regarding your system setup.
